

Interest on machinery and plant

You can claim the interest as a deduction if you have taken out a loan to purchase machinery or plant and it's for use wholly and exclusively in your:

- trade or profession
- office or employment

If you're trading, claim the interest in your accounts or in box 18 of the tax return self-employment section.

If you're employed claim the interest here.

'Wholly and exclusively' means that the rule is only satisfied if your sole purpose for incurring the expense is for the purposes of your trade, profession or vocation.
