No worries

Also came across these which I thought might be of interest some from a policy perspective and some for possible orgs who might be able to support the consultation.

Hi [REDACTED]

I hope you're well and had a lovely time [REDACTED]

My colleague [REDACTED] (cc'd) is leading on the work to reform our Termination of Pregnancy (ToP) legislation and service offering. A part of this work [REDACTED] is keen to hear directly from women with experience of ToP. Given the sensitivity and private nature of the subject matter [REDACTED] is exploring whether this qualitative work can be undertaken by an independent organisation.

I wanted to ask whether this would be something that [REDACTED] would consider undertaking given your skills and experience of researching sensitive issues and your trauma-informed approach - though I appreciate that [REDACTED], it maybe outside of your remit as an organisation?

Many thanks

Great news.

[REDACTED] do you have any availability either today or on Monday? – I'm keen to meet sooner rather than later given the timelines for this work.

I can do anytime between 8 and 2 other than:

- Today at 10.30-11.30
- Monday at 11.00 – 12.00

Afternoon [REDACTED]

Lovely to hear from you.

A MS Teams meeting sounds like a great idea.

[REDACTED] Ideally, Monday 1:30pm,
Tuesday 2:30pm or Wednesday 11am as we work in clinics during the rest of the time.

Thanks

Hi [REDACTED]

Is there any chance we could squeeze something in before [REDACTED]?

Given our timelines, we're keen to identify any possible partners for this work sooner rather than later.

My diary is pretty clear next week, although my working hours are usually between [REDACTED] If I had to dial in outside of those times I could probably make it work.

Subject: Termination of Pregnancy law and public consultation in Jersey

Good morning

The Minister for Health in Jersey has in her Ministerial Plan committed to carrying out a Public Consultation to seek views on our abortion legislation in Jersey.

As such, as part of the overarching consultation activity we are keen to hear directly from woman with lived experience of seeking or accessing an abortion in Jersey.

Given the sensitivity and private nature of the subject matter, our preference is for this qualitative work to be undertaken by an independent organisation with the skills and experience of researching sensitive issues with a mindfulness around trauma and do no harm principles.

I note from your website that you have a Research committee and am therefore keen to understand whether this is an area that your organisation has experience in and if so whether this might be a service that you'd be interested in being commissioned to provide for us?

In terms of timelines, we'd like to start holding these interviews in early June.

If an initial meeting would be helpful to provide more information about this work and our requirements please let me know and I will look to set something up over MS Teams.

Kind regards

Hello [REDACTED]

I just wanted to come back to you to confirm that I have received this - I'm working to a couple of delivery deadlines at the moment - we are definitely interested in bidding for this work but I'm afraid I haven't got capacity to write a bid until the week of the 27/03.

Will that be ok for your timelines?

Dear [REDACTED]

Thanks for reaching out to us about this really fascinating and important work.

Unfortunately we won't be able to work with you on this in this instance, most of our costs are in setting up the project, IT, IG etc and these costs are the same if we are doing 1 interview or 100, so the low number of interviews required and the short timescale unfortunately work against us in this instance.

Having said that, [REDACTED] would be happy to look at offer of support in different ways? We could see if some input from our Policy or clinical quality team might be useful to your consultation.

Do let us know if you would like to explore further?

Sincerely

Afternoon [redacted]

I wanted to follow up on our email correspondence from last week, provide you with an update and check whether you have an opportunity to consider the queries we raised.

Updates:

- We have spoken with our colleague [redacted] (cc'd) within the [redacted] consultancy team. [redacted] would support the process of submitting costings and proposal, assuming the responses you share in response to our queries (i.e. location and no. of interviews, approach to identifying interviewees, timeline) suggest the project is feasible from our perspective.

Some further points and queries in light of our conversation(s).

- We are all in agreement that a report submission of the end of July is not feasible. Based on our research experience, and depending on the no. of interviews and agreed approach to recruitment and interviews, [redacted] and I think that the end of November would be more realistic.
- Linked to the point above, we think that in-person interviews are unlikely to be possible within the budget [redacted] or proposed timeline. [redacted]
- [redacted] and I would value clarification on expectations around publication of the report, specifically whether this would be made available in the public domain as part of the consultation process. In the interests of transparency, we assume that the report would be made publically available. [redacted] noted that having a draft contract (if you have template you would typically use) could help us identify any other possible queries.

I trust this makes sense. We look forward to hearing from you.

All best wishes,

Subject: RE: Termination of Pregnancy (Jersey)

Hi [redacted]

It was great to meet you yesterday and hear more about the work you are undertaking in Jersey. Many thanks for sharing the quotation document for qualitative work that you have developed.

The questions we posed around expectations for participant numbers, selection/recruitment processes and timeline would directly inform the approach to the research (how we would propose the work will be conducted and delivered). The conversation we had, and my discussion with [REDACTED] has raised questions for me about the feasibility of the proposed timeline and report deadline (end of July 2023).

One other query. I note from the request for quote that it is expected that the interviews will take place in person in Jersey. Can you confirm whether this remains the expectation? This too would have a bearing on the timeline and budget.

I'd be grateful for any further information that can help us make an informed decision about whether and how we might be able to support the work.

All the best,

From: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]@gov.je>

Hi both

Thanks again for your time this morning. It was really helpful to get your views on our plans in the round.

I have attached the request for quotation document for the qualitative work and as discussed would be grateful if you could consider and advise whether you are able to support, [REDACTED]

As suggested, I will further consider participant numbers and selection processes.

Please come back to me if you have any further questions.

Kind regards

Afternoon [redacted]

I wanted to follow up on our email correspondence from last week, provide you with an update and check whether you have an opportunity to consider the queries we raised.

Updates:

- We have spoken with our colleague [redacted] (cc'd) within the [redacted] consultancy team. [redacted] would support the process of submitting costings and proposal, assuming the responses you share in response to our queries (i.e. location and no. of interviews, approach to identifying interviewees, timeline) suggest the project is feasible from our perspective.

Some further points and queries in light of our conversation(s).

- We are all in agreement that a report submission of the end of July is not feasible. Based on our research experience, and depending on the no. of interviews and agreed approach to recruitment and interviews, [redacted] and I think that the end of November would be more realistic.

- Linked to the point above, we think that in-person interviews are unlikely to be possible within the budget or proposed timeline.
- and I would value clarification on expectations around publication of the report, specifically whether this would be made available in the public domain as part of the consultation process. In the interests of transparency, we assume that the report would be made publically available. noted that having a draft contract (if you have template you would typically use) could help us identify any other possible queries.

I trust this makes sense. We look forward to hearing from you.

All best wishes,

Hi

It was great to meet you yesterday and hear more about the work you are undertaking in Jersey. Many thanks for sharing the quotation document for qualitative work that you have developed.

The questions we posed around expectations for participant numbers, selection/recruitment processes and timeline would directly inform the approach to the research (how we would propose the work will be conducted and delivered). The conversation we had, and my discussion with has raised questions for me about the feasibility of the proposed timeline and report deadline (end of July 2023).

One other query. I note from the request for quote that it is expected that the interviews will take place in person in Jersey. Can you confirm whether this remains the expectation? This too would have a bearing on the timeline and budget.

I'd be grateful for any further information that can help us make an informed decision about whether and how we might be able to support the work.

All the best,

Dear [redacted]

I hope you are very well.

Attached please find a proposal and quotation for the project on the lived experiences of people in Jersey who have sought or had an abortion.

I am available to discuss this further at your convenience.

Thank you for inviting the CRRC to submit a proposal.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Lived experiences of termination of pregnancy in Jersey

Quotation for services from the Centre for Reproductive Research & Communication

26 April 2023

BACKGROUND

The Centre for Reproductive Research & Communication (CRRC) is submitting this quotation in response to a request from the Government of Jersey (GoJ) to provide research consultancy services for a project on the lived experiences of termination of pregnancy (TOP). This work will be used to inform an upcoming public consultation on abortion legislation in Jersey.

Established in 2019, the CRRC exists to develop and deliver research that furthers access to evidence-based reproductive healthcare and inform policy, practice, and public discourse. We are situated within the British Pregnancy Advisory Service which is a charity in England that provides pregnancy counselling, abortion, contraception testing and treatment for sexually transmitted infections, and vasectomy. The CRRC draws on BPAS' activities to inform our research agenda and we work in collaboration and through strategic partnerships to achieve our mission. All members of the research team have extensive experience in abortion-related research and good research practice. The CRRC is overseen by an expert Steering Committee (details here). Please also see the reference list for recently published relevant research from the CRRC team (full text available on request).

DESCRIPTION OF APPROACH AND METHODS

Objectives

To gather the experiences of those who have:

- a) Had a TOP in Jersey
- b) Engaged with the formal healthcare system about having a TOP in Jersey
- c) Travelled from Jersey to have a TOP overseas.

The objectives can be refined further with input from both CRRC and GoJ staff.

Participant selection and recruitment

It is noted in the request for quotation that the GoJ officers will carry out recruitment and administration related to interviews. We will work with the local team in Jersey to advise on best practice for recruitment for abortion-related research. We will also work with the agencies in Jersey through which patients are referred and who provide abortion care if needed to inform a recruitment and selection strategy. We will also advise on an appropriate number of participants depending on the final objectives. It may be possible to recruit participants who obtained abortion pills through the informal sector. This would need further discussion with the GoJ team.

Data collection

Semi-structured interview guides will be used to explore the research objectives whilst affording the interviewer flexibility to skip questions already answered and probe in more detail where needed.

Interviews may be conducted face-to-face or via telephone/online conference call. In our experience many qualitative study participants in abortion-related research prefer a remote interview modality but we will also travel to Jersey for face-to-face ones. Informed consent will be sought from all participants before proceeding with an interview. Interviews will be audio recorded and transcribed by a professional transcription service. All participants will also be offered the opportunity to choose a pseudonym and any identifiable information from their interviews will be redacted.

We will work with the team in the GoJ to co-produce the interview guide to ensure that the information acquired meets their aims and objectives. We will draw on our extensive experience in working with those who have had an abortion to ensure that the interview process does not stigmatise participants and is sensitive to their experiences.

Data analysis and report writing

We will conduct reflexive thematic analysis (1,2). This involves several steps including data familiarisation, coding using an inductive framework (generated from the data itself) and writing summaries of data pertaining to each code. These summaries are then discussed amongst the research team for interpretation, who then develop high level themes from the data. We are familiar with this approach and have recently published several peer-reviewed papers using this methodology (3–6).

We will write up our findings into a report for the GoJ and draw on our expertise as abortion providers and researchers to make recommendations to improve provision of abortion in Jersey. While we may use direct quotations in the report, we will not utilise any identifying information.

Our approach to preventing harm

We acknowledge that abortion is a sensitive subject. Participants who experienced difficulties in accessing abortion care or who had a particularly stigmatising experience may feel distressed by participating in interviews. We have extensive experience of interviewing participants about their abortion and other reproductive health issues and will ensure all participants have access to short- and longer-term support if they need it. This includes a thorough informed consent process, pastoral support during the interview if they become upset (e.g., pausing the interview, offering tissues, active listening), and support in accessing support through organisations such as Abortion Talk.

Whilst abortion is often a stigmatised experience, it is very common healthcare need. Data from Jersey from 2020 observed a rate of 9.1 per 1000 woman aged 15-44 years. It is important to recognise that whilst some participants may need some support, those who have had an abortion are not inherently vulnerable by virtue of having one. We will ensure those who need support are able to access it, but that others are not stigmatised or made to feel that they should have negative feelings about their abortion, as it is paramount that participants are not stigmatised through participation in the research itself.

PROJECT PLAN

Given the nature of the in-depth work required, we advise extending the project to August. If the July deadline outlined in the request for quotation is hard and fast, we can adjust the project plan accordingly, but this may have a bearing on sample size as data from a larger sample will take longer to analyse.

PRIOR EXPERIENCE OF RESEARCH TEAM

Dr Patricia Lohr MD MPH

Dr Lohr is globally recognised for her work in abortion care. Patricia trained in Obstetrics and Gynaecology at the Harbor-UCLA Medical Center followed by a Fellowship in Family Planning & Contraceptive Research and Masters Degree in Public Health at the University of Pittsburgh. She has been Medical Director of British Pregnancy Advisory Service (BPAS) since 2007 and Director of the Centre for Reproductive Research and Communication since 2020. Her research interests include quality in abortion care, novel methods of medical abortion service delivery, and cervical preparation for second trimester surgical abortion. She has published over 50 peer-reviewed articles and several book chapters on family planning and has contributed to evidence-based guidance produced by the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG), Faculty of Sexual and Reproductive Healthcare, National Institute of Health and Care Excellence (NICE), and Society of Family Planning. Patricia serves as an Associate Editor for the journal BMJ Sexual and Reproductive Healthcare. In addition to service development and research, she is passionate about education in abortion and advises the RCOG on training and curricula and is Chair of the Education and Training Committee for the British Society of Abortion Care Providers. More details on Dr Lohr's publications can be found here.

Rebecca Blaylock MPH

Rebecca is a multidisciplinary researcher with a master's in public health (MPH) from Imperial College London and BA in Social Anthropology from the University of Cambridge. Her current research encompasses several projects on abortion, contraception, and public health and pregnancy. Rebecca's interdisciplinary training means she uses wide a range of methods. Recent projects include, but are not limited to, a systematic review of abortion in low-and-middle income countries, a quantitative evaluation of telemedical abortion services in the UK, a qualitative exploration of what 'quality' of care means to abortion patients, a qualitative study into patient's experience of pre-abortion ultrasound, and analysis of qualitative data on travel for abortion in the USA. Rebecca was lead researcher on WRISK, a research-engagement project funded by the Wellcome Trust which aimed to improve our understanding of the way that pregnancy-related risk is communicated.

Rebecca is an Associate Editor for the journal BMJ Sexual and Reproductive Health. She was recently awarded a prestigious NIHR/Wellbeing of Women Doctoral Fellowship to study how the introduction of telemedicine has impacted the accessibility and equity of abortion in England and Wales. She starts the fellowship at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine in September 2023.

Rebecca has recently acted as an expert consultant on qualitative abortion research for the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG) and Ibis Reproductive Health and has experience of delivering consultancy projects on time and within budget. She is experienced in conducting qualitative research with patients on their experiences of abortion, and other sensitive issues such as miscarriage and stillbirth, and mental health issues in pregnancy. She has conducted nearly 100 interviews and has analysed the data from many more. More details can on Ms Blaylock's publications can be found here.

Good afternoon

The Minister for Health in Jersey has in her Ministerial Plan committed to carrying out a Public Consultation to seek views on our abortion legislation in Jersey.

As such, as part of the overarching consultation activity we are keen to hear directly from woman with lived experience of seeking or accessing an abortion in Jersey.

Given the sensitivity and private nature of the subject matter, our preference is for this qualitative work to be undertaken by an independent organisation with the skills and experience of researching sensitive issues with a mindfulness around trauma and do no harm principles.

I note from your website that your charity offers collaborative partnerships for research purposes and am therefore keen to understand whether this is an area that your organisation has experience in and if so whether this might be a service that you'd be interested in being commissioned to provide for us?

In terms of timelines, we'd like to start holding these interviews in late May/early June.

If an initial meeting would be helpful to provide more information about this work and our requirements please let me know and I will look to set something up over MS Teams.

Kind regards

Sorry – as ever I am begging for money as I have no budget.

We'll be launching a consultation on termination of pregnancy (ToP) next month and, as part of that consultation, we'd like to engage expert contractors to interview women with lived experience of the Jersey service. Currently looking at engaging British Pregnancy Advice Service (not an uncontroversial choice as their raison d'être is to advocate for access to ToP services so clearly don't hit the 'neutral' box) but choices are limited in this field. Important work.

Yes I'm sure we could absorb such an amount. If there is only one real provider you could try arguing for an exemption. Otherwise it would be the three quotes route as they're not on our Framework.
