Good morning

I would like to register again our objections to the proposed developments.

In brief, they are at odds with many policies included in the Island Plan. Also, the applicant has agreed to return the land back to agriculture if the 'holiday village' is unsuccessful. I would question how this would be enforced. There is an existing codicil on the greenhouses on La Rue des Varvots that they should be returned to agriculture if they are no longer being used for growing purposes – they haven't been used to grow anything for many years, but the owner of the greenhouses has not been required/forced to return the land to its original agricultural state. Would the same apply to the holiday village? Would the chalets be allowed to rot on a concrete surface for year upon year?

Kind regards
